

CloudResearch National Survey | November 9, 2020

These data are from an online survey conducted by CloudResearch.com on November 9th, 2020 using Prime Panels. A total of 824 respondents over the age of 18 completed our survey. The sample was weighted using iterative proportional fitting (“raking”) to match the ACS 2018 5-year estimates on gender, age, race, ethnicity, education, and income. The margin of error for the unweighted sample is ± 3.4 percentage points; margins of error are larger for subgroup estimates.

Note: The presentation order of the questions was randomized for each survey.

CloudResearch.com is a company focused on improving behavioral science research. We connect researchers in academia, government, and industry with online participants and provide innovative tools that make online studies fast, accurate, and easy. The data for this study were gathered using our Prime Panels platform. Prime Panels has tens of millions of people within the US, which makes it possible to gather samples matched to the US census or other demographically representative templates.
